

Media Release2 March 2016

Gottex Fund Management Holdings Limited, an independent provider of global asset management solutions, has sold its multi-asset investment business, Frontier Investment Management (“Frontier”), back to its founder, Michael Azlen. This development is consistent with the strategic decision to focus the Group’s efforts on its core business of Alternative Investments.

The Frontier team, led by Michael Azlen, will continue to manage their product range offering endowment-style multi-asset investments to UK and International investors. Gottex will maintain a privileged relationship with Frontier with a high degree of collaboration in different areas of our businesses.

Due to Michael’s focus on the Frontier business following the sale, he will no longer serve on the Gottex Executive Committee.

Commenting, Michael Azlen stated:

“The Frontier team is excited about our future plans for growth. I want to thank the Gottex Board and senior management for the opportunity to buy back Frontier and we look forward to working closely with Gottex on a range of initiatives to benefit both companies in the future”.

Commenting, Arpad Busson, Executive Chairman, said:

“We wish Mike and his team great success with the future development of Frontier and are looking forward to maintaining our close collaboration for the mutual benefit of our businesses in the spirit we have enjoyed for the past few years”.
